RE-MAKING THE MARK | ZORA J. MURFF

Re-Making the Mark is the combination of two projects, A Lineage (An Erasure) and At No Point In Between. This work focuses on the problematic historical and contemporary criminalization and Othering of blackness in America. Zora J Murff reinterprets historical and existing narratives of race, violence, and power by exploring the relationship between “fast” and “slow” violence.

The combination of photographic images, sculpture, and artifacts make visceral the continued theft of black life by white hands. By creating a collection of images scrutinized in both their historical and contemporary contexts, Murff metaphorically connects the body and the landscape, fast and slow violence. By intertwining witnessing and critical analysis, he provides a deeper understanding of systemic white supremacy and the resulting violence therein.

Exhibition Location:

REGISTER FOR INTRODUCING FEMINIST FRAMEWORKS!

Introducing Feminist Frameworks is a two-course online badge program that provides a functional framework for advancing critical understandings of feminism, intersectionality, gender, and systems of oppression.

This series is ideal for those seeking to advance their learning beyond that which can typically be covered through introductory trainings and workshops on gender, diversity, and inclusion.

A limited number of eligible CSU employees may also register for these non-credit courses with discounted tuition thanks to a sponsorship from the Women & Gender Collaborative and Commitment to Campus, in collaboration with CSU Online.

With the discounted tuition, the cost is only $33 for an individual course, or $52 when registering for both! For more information, please click here.

COMMUNITY WORKSHOP OPPORTUNITY

CSU, the City of Fort Collins, and Diversity Solutions Group would like to invite you to join us for a 1.5 day long program, “RACE: Let’s Talk About It!” designed to help participants explore the concept of race as part of our human socialization and identity, how we each relate to race, and effective ways to dialogue about it. Our human identities are constructed through the process of socialization. We don’t see the world through clear and objective eyes; rather, we see the world through socialized eyes. Race is a fundamental component of this socialization, our human identity, and is always at play; race matters! We must continue to engage in effective dialogue about race to get the changes we say we want.

This 1.5-day workshop will:

- Establish an understanding of the concepts of race, privilege, white fragility and other related concepts
- Introduce more effective ways to dialogue about race
- Invite participants to continue to learn about race and racism
- Inspire participants to commit to strategic actions to challenge and interrupt – rather than protect – racism at the personal and institutional levels.

When: 1.5 days - Starting Friday, June 28th 1pm - 5pm Continuing Saturday, June 29th 8:30am - 5pm

Where: Colorado River Community Room, 222 LaPorte Ave., Ft. Collins, CO 80521

Cost: $50 (limited number of scholarships available)

Registration and more info at: www.diversitysolutionsgroup.com
