Key Findings: Division of Student Affairs

- Compared to CSU overall, the division of student affairs (DSA) had higher average agreements in nearly all organizational themes in 2021, except for work college/division leadership accountability with the lowest rates at 37%. Extremely high rates (33%) were reported around favoritism, which is undesirable.

- Compared to college/division overall, men and women had comparable average agreements across all themes, except for college/division leadership accountability. Transgender and gender nonconforming employees had the highest rates regarding department/unit leadership accountability and respect.

- Compared to college/division overall, women employees had lower average agreements in nearly all themes in 2021, with lowest rates around college/division leadership accountability.

- Compared to college/division overall, racially minoritized and state classified employees reported undesirable average agreements across all organizational themes, with extremely high rates (34% - 39%) for favoritism, respectively. In general, all employees had the lowest average agreements for college/division level leadership accountability.

- When looking at perceptions over time for the division, we found a decrease in average agreements in nearly all themes in 2021 compared to 2018, except for encouragement around discussions related to diversity and recruitment of employees from a diverse background. Average agreements were lowest (<50%) regarding support and retention of employees from diverse backgrounds.

- While there was a decrease in reported discriminatory attitudes in nearly all themes in 2021 compared to 2018, we found less desirable average agreements related to discriminatory behaviors related to socioeconomic status. There were no changes among reported discriminatory attitudes related to sexual orientation, race/ethnicity, and physical/mental disability.

- Additionally, there was an increase in problematic behaviors related to sexual harassment and verbal abuse in 2021 compared to 2018. However, there was a decrease in problematic behaviors regarding bias and bullying in the division.
